Copyrights and rights of use

The eye_land project undertakes to handle all submissions respectfully. The publications on the website as well as the use of individual pictures for public relations and for the exhibition take place with utmost care, sensitivity and transparency. The participants (individuals and institutions) assure that they are the authors of the submitted photographs or possess the rights of the respective pictures and that the persons depicted on them have given their consent to communicating them to the public. The Deutsche Kinder- und Jugendfilmzentrum (KJF, German Centre for Youth and Children's Films) and the Bundeszentrale für politische Bildung (bpb, Federal Agency for Civic Education) may use the photos in connection with the eye_land project (print media, online, exhibitions etc.). They receive in this regard the non-exclusive copyright and the non-commercial use permission by the submitter/rights-holder(s). Use of the photographs through the KJF and the bpb will only take place acknowledging and stating the author(s) of the picture/the institution. For exhibition purposes, the participants will provide the image files in optimum quality.

Sending of text material

The editorial team of eye_land reserves the right to modify submitted texts in terms of length or content, without changing any statement. As we, for example, would rather not like to speak of "refugees", but instead use the verb: e.g. people who have left their home/fled/resorted/took refuge, a man who fled, a woman who fled, a child who fled. Thanks!

Data protection

Personal data submitted will be used for internal purposes only and will not be handed on to third parties. Within the scope of public relations as well as during exhibitions your address will not be published.

For all under the age of 18 years:

My parents have read the participation conditions and have given their consent to my participation.
